The disclosure is objected for containing typographical errors. For example, note page 54, in line 3 of paragraph [00143]. Here "Stoke" must be changed to --Stroke--.

Applicant should review the entire specification to correct this and other such errors.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kotaki. The patent to Kotaki discloses a method of generating embroidery data from image data comprising automatically identifying a singular region P1, Fig. 4(B) from a plurality of regions associated with the image data (using branch and end points search unit 44), and generating the embroidery data based on the identification of the singular region (see col. 8, lines 66-67 and col. 9, lines 1-15). With regard to claims 8, 14, and 21 note that scanner 22, Fig. 1 in Kotaki receives image data based on the original drawing of the embroidery region A, Figs. 4(A)-4(E) and inputs that data for storage into electronic memory 16. It is well known to one having ordinary skill in the art that image data stored in electronic memory is represented in a variety of standard formats including .bmp (viz. bitmap) files.
